

Leidos Awarded Contract to Provide NORAD and USNORTHCOM Network Operations & Maintenance Services

February 4, 2020

RESTON, Va., Feb. 4, 2020 /PRNewswire/ -- Leidos (NYSE:LDOS), a FORTUNE® 500 science and technology leader, has been awarded a prime contract by the General Services Administration in support of the North American Aerospace Defense Command (NORAD) and the U.S. Northern Command (USNORTHCOM) to provide network operations and general IT maintenance services to the command's systems directorate. The single award, hybrid firm-fixed price time and material contract has a one-year base period of performance followed by four one-year option periods and a final six month option period, at an approximate value of more than $75 million, if all options are exercised. Work will be performed at Peterson Air Force Base in Colorado Springs, Colo., the Pentagon in Washington D.C., and the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City.

Under the contract, Leidos will help ensure secure, reliable, and uninterrupted availability of the command's IP networks and associated capabilities. Key services to be provided include information transport, network distribution and monitoring, computing services, application services, technical management, and cybersecurity. Additionally, Leidos will support the Combatant Command (COCOM) Mission Service category with service desk and technical management functions.

"Leidos is proud to keep NORAD and USNORTHCOM warfighters connected as they defend citizens and interests in North America," said Daniel Voce, Leidos senior vice president, Enterprise Cyber and Solutions. "Our consummate past performance in global network operations and sustainment will serve the combatant command well in keeping watch and outpacing threats should they arise."
