

Leidos Launches the Leidos Alliance Partner Network

May 30, 2018

New program to help company deliver strategic solutions

RESTON, Va., May 30, 2018 /PRNewswire/ -- Leidos (NYSE: LDOS), a FORTUNE® 500 science and technology leader, today announced the creation of the Leidos Alliance Partner Network, a new program leveraging the Leidos supplier base to drive innovation, enhance program performance and build efficiency. The program uses the company's deep supplier base to help ensure every solution delivers customer mission success.

The Leidos Alliance is comprised of three strategic levels: Corporate Strategic Partner, Technology Alliance Partner and Emerging Technology Partner. Corporate Strategic Partners are true collaborators that have strong technical capabilities underscored with a well-established relationship with Leidos. Technology Alliance Partners are close company allies with recognized experience and expertise, while Emerging Technology Partners are known associates with significant interest from the organization.

"The Leidos Alliance brings together our key suppliers to forge a new avenue to achieve technological milestones and efficiencies that support our current and future customers," said Bob Gemmill, Leidos Vice President of Strategic Sourcing. "The program highlights the importance of our supplier base to the company and emphasizes the value we place on our key program partners."

Companies included in the inaugural Leidos Alliance are as follows:

Corporate Strategic Partners:

Dell-EMC

Technology Alliance Partners:

McAfee, Amazon Web Services, NetApp, Hewlett Packard Enterprise, Cisco, Juniper

Emerging Technology Partners:

To be announced at a later date

"Leidos' Alliance Partner Network builds on an already successful partnership we have enjoyed between our two companies," says Tracy Pavillard, vice president for federal channels and systems integrator programs at Dell EMC. "We share their commitment to delivering transformational technology for our customers' missions, and look forward to the innovation this partnership will foster."
