

Design-Build Institute of America Recognizes SAIC's Benham Subsidiary With 2009 National Excellence Award

November 11, 2009

Company Honored for Design of Boral Bricks Manufacturing Plant

MCLEAN, Va. and SAN DIEGO, Nov 11, 2009 /PRNewswire-FirstCall via COMTEX News Network/ -- Science Applications International Corporation (SAIC) (NYSE: SAI) today announced that its wholly owned design-build subsidiary Benham has received the Design-Build Institute of America (DBIA) 2009 National Excellence Award for the design and construction of the Boral Bricks manufacturing plant in Terre Haute, Ind.

Boral is the largest manufacturer of and distributor of clay brick in the United States, and the 295,000-square-foot Indiana plant is the largest brick manufacturing facility in the U.S. DBIA is an association of leaders in the design and construction industry utilizing design-build and integrated project delivery methods to achieve high performance projects. The award was presented at the DBIA's 2009 Conference and Expo in Washington, D.C.

"DBIA's recognition and the fact that we were able to achieve LEED(R) Silver Certification for the largest brick plant in the United States are testaments to our project team's commitment to excellence and innovation, SAIC's corporate commitment to a sustainable future, and the strong creative business relationship between Boral and Benham," said J.T. Grumski, SAIC senior vice president and business unit general manager.

The U.S. Green Building Council's LEED, or Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design, is the nation's leading program for the certification of green buildings.
