

SAIC Hosts Conference for Minority Institutions

April 7, 2005

(MCLEAN, VA) - Science Applications International Corporation (SAIC) recently hosted a business development conference for Historically Black Colleges and Universities and Minority Institutions (HBCU/MIs). The event served as an opportunity for several institutions to present their capabilities to SAIC program and business managers. The conference is part of a company-wide effort to support the federal government's initiatives to increase prime and subcontract opportunities with HBCU/MIs.

Representatives from Alabama A&M University, Florida International University, Morehouse College, Norfolk State University, Prairie View A&M University, and Voorhees College participated in the conference. Also, senior managers from the Army, Navy, National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) attended the conference to discuss their respective programs and initiatives focused on increasing HBCU/MI participation.

"These institutions possess tremendous capabilities which are essential in providing innovative solutions to our customers," said George Otchere SAIC senior vice president. "Our goal is to bring together the best institutions with the right solutions to address complex challenges."

In addition, SAIC is planning to conduct another forum aimed at providing proposal development and marketing training to the selected minority institutions. Furthermore, SAIC recently committed to providing scholarships to several students from selected minority institutions.
