

SAIC Awarded $21 Million Contract by U.S. Geological Survey

April 7, 2008

Company to Provide Comprehensive Technical Support Under the Landsat Data Continuity Contract

SAN DIEGO and MCLEAN, Va., April 7, 2008, 2008 /PRNewswire-FirstCall via COMTEX News Network/ -- Science Applications International Corporation (NYSE: SAI) today announced it has been awarded the Landsat Data Continuity Contract (LDCC) by the Department of the Interior, U.S. Geological Survey, to provide comprehensive technical support to the program. This prime, single-award contract has a one year base period of performance, three one-year options and a total value of more than $21 million if all options are exercised. Work will be performed at SAIC's LDCC Development Facility in Sioux Falls, S.D., in support of the Earth Resources Observation and Science (EROS) Center there.

The Landsat Program is a series of Earth-observing satellite missions jointly managed by NASA and the U.S. Geological Survey. Since 1972, Landsat satellites have collected information about Earth from space. Under the contract, SAIC will support the collection, processing, distribution analysis and archival of this information. SAIC will also provide project management, programming, and systems and software engineering services.

"SAIC has a long history of providing top-notch technical support services to the U.S. Geological Survey," said Charles Zang, SAIC senior vice president and business unit general manager. "We have an extensive understanding of existing systems, strategic initiatives and the user community's most pressing technology needs."
