

Leidos to support over 4.7 million service members and families through Military OneSource

April 29, 2026

RESTON, Va., April 29, 2026 /PRNewswire/ -- More than 4.7 million Department of War service members and family members will continue to receive comprehensive well-being services through Military OneSource, supported by Leidos (NYSE: LDOS) through a $456 million contract from the General Services Administration to manage the program over four years.

Military OneSource provides confidential counseling, resources for parents and caregivers, tax services, spouse employment support, relocation and deployment tools, and more to service members and their families via phone and live chat 24/7.

"As a military spouse, I know how important it is to have straightforward access to these services," said Liz Porter, Leidos Health president. "Leidos has been supporting active duty and retired military personnel, and their families, for many years now. Strengthening the health and readiness of those in uniform is a responsibility we feel deeply across our company."

Leidos delivers a broad range of health services, including 2.8 million exams each year for active-duty service members, veterans, government employees, and civilians across the United States and in 44 countries. The company also provides non-medical counseling through a network of more than 1,200 counselors at over 135 military installations worldwide and has deployed the world's largest electronic health record system, serving nearly 10 million people across the Department of War and other federal agencies.

Leidos's work on Military OneSource aligns with the managed health services priority of the company's NorthStar 2030 growth strategy.
